Social change toward a more just society does not simply happen. It requires all to take an active role.

From voter education to social action, the Office for Social Impact supports students in becoming active contributors to their communities and the world.

Through events, students connect with local communities, engage in discussions to advance a thriving TU community, and participate in the political process.

Programs offer sustained opportunities for students to dive deeper and start envisioning a role for themselves in social impact work.

Through paid leadership opportunities, students develop social impact competencies and engage in experiential learning.

Students who were members of a scouting program in high school can also apply for the Kevin Ryan Memorial Scholarship to receive financial assistance.
